

National School Admission Registers & Log-Books

1870-1914

Abijah Dewitt Haskins 1880

School Records are as old as schools themselves but the majority of records, log books and admission registers date from Victorian times, the latter half of the nineteenth century, in particular as a result of the changes to local education brought about by The Education Act of 1870.

The purpose of an admission register was to record basic details about children admitted to the school, and about their parents or guardians. The registers were also used to record the progress of the children through various classes and the date of their leaving the school.

Most local county archives hold school records for their areas but in the majority of cases these are not indexed nor are they available online.
