

The Falstone Day Book By Jay Waylen 1894

The object of this paper is to exhibit some of the various methods of raising money put in practice in Wiltshire during the Civil War by such of the resident gentry as were favourable to the Parliament's cause.¹ The first standing Committee for the county was organised at the close of the year 1642, in pursuance of a Parliamentary Ordinance applicable to the whole of England, and levying a weekly assessment of so much in the pound; though this by no means represents the various forms of appeal made from time to time as the struggle went on. On the other hand, the King also had his Committee. At least he occasionally nominated local groups of his friends for a variety of objects in his own behalf; but their action was spasmodic and their existence very brief. The poor people, meanwhile, whenever this double action was put in force, found themselves ground between two millstones. If the Royalist visitations were sweeping and desolating, those of the Committees were systematic and perennial.

The first Wilts. Committee acting for the Parliament comprised only the fifteen following names:-²

Surname	Given Names	Title	Residence
Ashe	John		Heytesbury
Baynton	Edward		Bromham
Baynton	Edward	Sir	Bromham
Evelyn	John	Sir	West Dean
Goddard	Edward		Marlborough
Hollis	Denzil		Haughton

Moore	Thomas		Heytesbury
Poole	Edward		Wootton Bassett?
Poole	Nevill	Sir	Oaksey
Thistlethwayte	Alexander, Jnr.		Winterslow
Tooker	Edward		Maddington
Wheeler	William		Westbury

¹ The source from which the matter printed here is derived is the original manuscript, contained in two small vellum-covered folios which were copied by myself some forty years ago, when they were in the possession of a professional gentleman at Salisbury whose name I do not accurately remember - nor do I know what subsequently became of them.

² OPC Note - the tables in this transcription replace lists of text of names involved. The names have also been listed alphabetically rather than as in the originally documents.

The town of Malmesbury, as the spot in the county the most susceptible of fortification, became at first the most attractive place of meeting; but in the course of a few months the Committee greatly reinforced, in order to secure the combined object of maintaining a garrison at Malmesbury and securing the county generally. The names constituting this enlarged Committee are all set forth at page 637 of the sixth vol. of the Lords' Journals, and are as follows:-

Of this body three of more might at any time constitute a quorum, thus enabling them to act in sections in different parts of the county, as the exigencies of the war might require. Eventually they seem to have thought they would be more out of harm's way in a fortified house than in a town; and accordingly made choice of Falstone House, a little south of Wilton (the property of Sir George Vaughan). In this they were undoubtedly right; for in fact Malmesbury, as well as Marlborough and Devizes, was taken and re-taken half-a-dozen times in the course of the war. This establishment was made in the spring of 1645. In the autumn of the same year Longford Castle, having been reduced by Cromwell, was occupied in a similar manner.

While this Falstone conclave dealt principally with the southern half of the county, other portions of the Committee were occasionally sitting and acting in Marlborough, Malmesbury, Devizes, and Salisbury; but I am inclined to think that this was the central place of business; for the Falstone, treasurers' accounts deal also with financial matters in the north of the county, though to a less extent; and further, because the county troops received their pay at Falstone; and, after the occupation of Longford Castle, William Ludlow, who commanded the horse, took up his station in and around the fortalice.

The names of some of the Falstone treasurers in succession were:-

Cox	Thomas
Poulton	Thomas
Ditton	Humphrey
Good	Robert
Hill	Richard

- Salisbury men apparently; nomination to office by the month. The Committee's clerk was Mr. John Strange at a salary of £8 a month.³ In 1649 Mr. Strange was succeeded by Jonathan Hill.

When gathering for private use the memoranda here bearing the general name of The Falstone Day-Book, I had no expectation of their ever coming under the notice of your archaeological experts. A few miscellaneous entries have in consequence found place, which could not now be detached; but, as all the matters are homogeneous, it is hoped no objection will be taken. The verbiage is of course in numberless cases abbreviated; but no names are omitted; and the whole may form a sort of prelude to the narrative of the final settlements effected at Goldsmiths' Hall, already set forth in our Magazine, under the title of Wiltshire Compounders. (See vol. xxiii., 314; xxiv., 58, 308). To include a transcript of the various treasurers' accounts would have made the affair far too bulky. Neither have the charges been recited which were brought against some of the resident clergy, by which so many of them were displaced from their livings - those charges being creditable to neither party.

These County Committees had no authority to compound with Royalists by levies on real property; but they could deal with personals in the form of stock or rent, and re-let sequestered estates. A few more explanatory notes must close this introductory chapter.

"Delinquency" meant adherence to the King's party. A "Recusant" was a Romanist. The word "parsonage" must be taken in the modern sense of rectory. "A rowless thing," an expression often occurring in the terriers, otherwise spelt a "rowlist thing" and a "rowlass thing," seems to indicate wasted or unregistered land [?]. Money advanced "upon the propositions" was understood to rely on the public faith for re-payment - to what extent ever realized it were hard to say. "The twenty-fifth part," so called, was a direct levy on a man's personal property, if not under £200. "Illegal Assizes," another term of frequent occurrence refers to an action on the King's part, which the Parliament never forgave, namely, that of opening a commission at Salisbury to arraign for high treason the Earls of Salisbury, Pembroke, and Northumberland, and divers other friends of the Parliament. The "Negative Oath" was a promise not to take up arms against the Parliament. The "Covenant" embraced polemical issues of a far wider sweep.

THE LOG BOOK

1645 17th September. Sir George Penruddocke's fine for his parsonage and other land at Broad-Chalk. Alston to be discharged by £50 in money and twenty quarters of wheat to be sent in to Falstone Castle, is subscribed in his behalf by Mr. Thomas Bigg.

17th September. Lawrence St. Loe, of Chalk, gent., hath made composition for this year for and in behalf of Robert Hyde, Esq., Sergeant-at-Law, for his parsonage at Dinton; and is to pay £13 6s. 6d., on the first of October next.⁴

³ OPC Note £8 in 1642 would equate to more than £1500 in 2015

1646 8th January Richard Aubrey, of Broadchalk, gent, has already paid £7 in North Wilts. towards his five and twentieth part there. Now he pays to us at Falstone £33 in sixty fat sheep and £60 in money, accepted for his fine here and in Herefordshire.

[1646] [10th-12th January] Vaughan Friend, accused of detaining in his custody certain arms belonging to the Parliament, disbursed for his enlargement £6. John Sweetapple of Chalk, £10 upon the Propositions. John Gilbert, of Sarum, £10. Elise Haseall, of Semley, £10. Seized by Mr. Sanger, the collector of Richard Hawkins, tenant of Sir John Webb, at Odstock, £80. (Among other particulars of the Odstock seizure occurs this:- Received for two books of the seized goods of Mr. Smith, the minister, 15 shillings.⁵

February 6th to 10th. Mr. Wilkinson delivered in upon the Propositions two muskets, two pair of bandoliers, a case of pistols, and a carbine, worth £3, and 40 shillings in money. – Francis Matthews, of Barton Ball, £5. – Francis Collyer and John Merret, of Hanging Langford, £5 each. – Thomas Miles, of Wroughton, a black mare worth £6. – Robert Blake, of Wishford, £10, besides a horse lent to Sir William Waller. – John Newman, of Charlton, and Rowland Newman, each £20. – John Chubb, in behalf of the widow Andras, of Bulford, £10. – Richard Ratway, in behalf of Henry Poynter, of Bulford, £5. – Francis Weeks, of Amesbury, £20. – Mr. John Lynch, of Downton, £7 10s. in a hay horse. – William Lawes, of Broadchalk, £20. – Thomas Wheeleer, £5.

10th February. John Lawes, of Broadchalk, tithingman, is accused by Ambrose Newe and John Randell as follows. When the Lord Hopton was at Winchester, just before Cheriton fight, Lawes came to the house of Edmund White in order to impress him for the King's service, though sixty years of age, and lying sick in bed. Mr. Hudson, another witness, testified that when Lawes was offered the press-money as a substitute, he refused it, saying that the substitute he required was the old man's son, then in the Parliament's service. He compelled the old man to arise, though he trembled too much to put on or off his clothes; and in fact died within six weeks, declaring that Lawes had been the death of him. Lawes being now brought prisoner to Falstone, pays £10 for his enlargement.

16th February. Richard Toope, of Knoyle, gent., a captain in the King's army, brought in here and committed to the Marshall. But by reason his estate lies in Dorsetshire he pays £5 for his present enlargement, and Henry Randall, of Broadchalk, gives bond for his appearance within a month before Colonel John Bingham, at Poole, there to make further satisfaction.

3rd March. William Grove, of Guston, in the parish of Chalk. Thomas Hayward, of Normanton, and William Hayward, of Durnford, £5 each. – From Warminster Mr. John Fisher and Mr. Edward Middlecot, each £10. Mr. Middlecot had at various times shown his affection to the Parliament by setting forth horse and arms under Sir Edward Hungerford.⁶

March 27th to 31st. Sequestered and seized £2, the half-year's rent of Mr. Hackman's land at Sarum. – William Antrim, of Sarum, his assessment is thought fit to be taken off. – Mr. George Vennard, of Goveley, in Hants, takes the Covenant and pays £10. – George Turner, of Corsley, £5. – William Wilson, of Sarum, £10 – Thomas Hancock is to pay £5 a year for a meadow of three acres next West Harnham parsonage, as it belongs to Dean Nicholas, a delinquent, and not to the hospital, as we are informed. – William Walwyn takes the Negative Oath. – George Hascall is become tenant for "a rowlass thing" called Dawes-Frowd, land of Lord Arundel and estated out to Mrs. Morley, a recusant. He is to pay £18 and allow Mrs. Morley £8 for her thirds – and to take for hedge-bote and fire-bote only the lopps of such trees as have been usually lopped and may be conveniently spared. – John Lush, jun., of Donhead, subscribes 50 shillings; his father, John Lush, sen., two quarters of oats and £3 in money. – John King, of Dinton, is assessed £50. This is paid to the other Committee, Quaere. – Walter Bennett, of Chalk, subscribes £10.⁷ – Mr. George Dyer, of Heytesbury, a steady friend of the Parliament, maintaining his son in the service with horse and arms to this day – and suffering much by plunder from the Cavaliers. We therefore accept 40 shillings in lieu of his five and twentieth part, and do acquit him upon the Ordinance made in that behalf.
