William Haslen 28th May, 1836

Killed in Stone-quarry

Mr Whitmarsh held an inquest on Saturday, the 28th ult., at Compton Chamberlaine, on the body of Wm. Haslen, who was on the same morning killed in a stone-quarry, a quantity of earth having fallen in and buried him as he was employed in excavating the earth for the purpose of getting at the stone.

Verdict, "Accidental death."
