Cricklade

The notorious Joseph Ady has been trying his hand in North Wilts. This imposter has had the audacity to address the following letter by post, but of course not free postage, to Mr. Lovett, solicitor of Cricklade, and which that Gentleman has forwarded to us for insertion, as a caution to the public:-

“The undersigned is able to inform you of something he believes considerably to be to your advantage, on receipt of five shillings for his trouble, by post-office order or otherwise.”

“Respectfully”

“Joseph Ady, Accountant”

“No. 7, York street, Commercial Road”

“Near Charlotte Street, Whitechapel Road, London”

“Feb. 16, 1838”

“Mr. Jas. Lovett, Cricklade”

“No letters received unless post paid.”
