Reinforcements were only given basic training in Australia. Training was completed in training units in England. Some of these were located in the Salisbury Plain & surrounding areas in the county of Wiltshire.

Pte George Cowen was marched in to 3rd Training Battalion at Perham Downs, Wiltshire on 22nd November, 1916.

Pte George Cowen was admitted to Fargo Military Hospital, Wiltshire on 22nd December, 1916.

Pte George Cowen died of Broncho pneumonia at 7.45 p.m. on 26th December, 1916 at Fargo Military Hospital. He had originally been reported as having died of Bronchitis.

A death for George Cowan, aged 25, was registered in the December quarter, 1916 in the district of Amesbury, Wiltshire.

The Red Cross Wounded & Missing File for Pte George Cowen contains a letter from the Assistant Matron of Fargo Military Hospital –

“Pte Cowen was admitted to hospital on Dec. 22nd, 1916 suffering from Broncho pneumonia. We thought for the first few days they he would get better but his heart was not strong enough to bear the strain put on it – his breathing was very difficult. He was a very good patient and made a hard fight for recovery, everything possible was done for him, but he died at Dec. 26th and was buried on Dec. 29th at Durrington, Salisbury Plain. Grave No. 137 on right hand side of cemetery path.”

Pte George Cowen was buried at Durrington Cemetery, Wiltshire – plot number 137 on 29th December, 1916.

A War Pension was granted to Jane Cowen, widow of late Pte George Cowen in the sum of 40/- per fortnight from 1st March, 1917.

Private G. Cowen is commemorated in the Hall of Memory Commemorative Area at the Australian War Memorial, Canberra, Australia on Panel 65.

Pte George Watkin Cowen is also remembered on the Hobart Soldier's Memorial Avenue – Tree # 182.

The Soldiers Memorial Avenue forms part of the Queens Domain in Hobart Tasmania. It is a memorial avenue comprising 520 trees planted in 1918 and 1919 to commemorate soldiers, mainly from Hobart, who died in the Great War 1914-1918. The trees are predominantly Himalayan Cedar though Atlantic Cedars, Blue Atlas and Italian Cypress are also present (the latter planted as replacements in the 1960s). In 2001 only 330 original trees remained. Friends of Soldiers Walk Inc. was formed in 2002 to ensure the restoration of the Avenue.

Commonwealth War Graves Commission Headstones

The Defence Department, in 1920/21, contacted the next of kin of the deceased World War 1 soldiers to see if they wanted to include a personal inscription on the permanent headstone at Durrington War Graves Cemetery. Space was reserved for 66 letters only (with the space between any two words to be counted as an additional letter) & the rate per letter was around 3 ½ d (subject to fluctuation).

The expense in connection for the erection of permanent headstones over the graves of fallen soldiers was borne by the Australian Government.

(Information obtained from letters sent to next of kin in 1921)

Pte G. Cowen does have a personal inscription on his headstone.
