

Newspaper Advertisement

LAVERSTOCK-HOUSE, near SALISBURY,

For INSANE and LUNATICS.

WILLIAM FINCH respectfully informs the Guardians and Friends of those who are unhappily afflicted, that he continues to receive and medically treat Patients in all the various stages of the above disorder.

He flatters himself the extensive practice he has made for more than fifteen years past, joined to the success that has attended his tender and humane treatment, will be sufficient testimony to his abilities.

The situation of his house had many advantages, being large and airy; together with extensive gardens walled round, so that his patients, at proper times, enjoy the free country air with little or no idea of confinement.

Salisbury and Winchester Journal, 22 September 1788