1833

Mr. R. Cully's opening dinner, at Ludgershall, which took place on Friday, the 8th inst., was most numerous and respectably attended. The dinner, which consisted of all the delicacies of the season, was served up in Mr. Cully's superior style. The wines were considered by all present to be of the first quality and the evening was spent in the most convivial manner. Salisbury and Winchester Journal, 18 December 1837
