

Mere Temperance Society courtesy of Mere Museum

Temperance Entertainment

On Friday evening, the 13th inst., the members of the Mere Temperance Society gave a second entertainment at the lecture-room, Salisbury street.

The following pieces were sung, with pianoforte accompaniment:- "O worship the King all glorious above;" "Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty;" "O buckle on the armour;" "Battling for the Lord;" "Hear the royal proclamation;" "Hark, what mean those holy voices," &c., &c. These pieces were interspersed with readings from the "Holy War," by Mr. J. F. Rutter.

There was a good attendance, and the audience appeared to enjoy the evening's entertainment.

Salisbury and Winchester Journal and General Advertiser, 21 December 1872