

Wedding

The wedding took place at the Parish Church on Friday of Corporal Frederick Norman Dear, the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Dear, of Horseshoe Villa, Netheravon, and Miss Olive Lily Prentice, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Charles Prentice, of New Buildings, Netheravon. The service was conducted by the Rev. P. E. Mann. The blind uncle of the bridegroom (Mr. J. Bryant) was at the organ, and the hymns sung were "Lead us, Heavenly Father" and "Immortal, invisible, God only wise". The bride given away by her father, wore a moss-green Angora wool dress, trimmed with beige lace, a black tailored coat, a Parisian black felt hat, black suede court shoes, and beige silk stockings and white gloves, and a spray of pale pink carnations and a gold brooch, the gift of the bridegroom. She was attended by Miss Mav Dredge of Salisbury who wore a tailored suit of the new blue, with a blue Angora felt hat, navy blue kid shoes and beige silk stockings, with a spray of pale pink carnations. The best man was Lance-Corporal Tom Hughes. A reception was held at the home of the bride.
