The church, which is an ancient stone structure in the old English style of architecture, is supposed to have been created in the reign of Edward I.; it is in good repair & has a new square tower, with a low spire, a vane and 4 bells. There is a National school supported by weekly payments of the children, aided when necessary by voluntary contributions of the inhabitants. Here are also for chapel for dissenters, viz. – Particular Baptist, General Baptist, Independent & Primitive Methodist, with Sunday schools attached. The charities are very inconsiderable arising out of a church-house & land bequeathed for repairs to the church & c. The only mansion in the neighborhood is Kingsdown House, a new stone building in the Elizabethan style, the property of David Archer Esq. who now occupies the same. The old Roman road runs direct through the village. Ambrose Goddard Esq. is the lord of the manor. The population according to the Census in 1851 was 1,725 with 2,620 Acres.
