

Death of James Chapman

A serious accident happened at West Lavington on Tuesday last. A party had been shooting for a dinner at the Lamb Inn when a gun burst and a portion of the barrel came with great force against the head of a young man named James Chapman. The poor fellow immediately fell insensible to the ground; and although he is still alive, there is no hope of his recovery. He is since dead.

Devizes & Wiltshire Gazette, 28 December 1848