

Diaries
of Persons to Serve on the Special Jury
1876 – 1877

---

William Henry Poynder Esquire – High Sheriff
Jacob Phillips Esquire – Under Sheriff

---

OPC note:

A special jury, which is a jury selected from a special roll of persons with a restrictive qualification, could be used for civil or criminal cases, although in criminal cases only for misdemeanours such as seditious libel.

The qualifications to be a special juror in England were governed by the Juries Act 1870, and the main difference between the special jury and a common jury under that Act was merely a matter of wealth; indeed, it was little more than a question of whether a person lived in a larger house, because it was mainly a question of the rateable value of the house.

A householder rated at £100 in a large town, or £50 in a small town, was qualified to be a special juror.
