

Stream flowing through Worton

Drowned in Mill Stream

There was a fatal sequel at Worton to a game being played by children on the banks of the Mill stream. A child named Howard Edward Goss, aged three and a half years, son of the licensee of the Rose and Crown Inn, fell into the stream which was in a swollen condition. The body was recovered about a quarter of a mile away.

Western Daily Press 4 March 1927